SRD Member Finds Old Saying True: 'Cash Grows On Muck

To say that the road board member came up smiling is put-ting it mildy. For many years he has been familiar with the mucklands of the Lake Region. But, the finding of the dollar bill just happened to strike a respon-sive chord and he said: "Tvo just happened to strike a respon-sive chord and he said: "Tve, heard for years that dollars grew on the muck. The genial road board member is president of The Indian River Citrus Bank in Vero Beach and has opportunity to handle many dollar bills. But, the one he plucked from the muck probably brought him more pleasure than a lot of the interest payments he receives in his popular home town bank.

The Road No. 15 contract calls for widening the road two feet on each side and putting on a new surface. Several new bridges will be built on this stretch of road.

The work on Conner's Highway will consist of putting on a coat of asphalt and one layer of small rock. The base of the road is good but has been slick during wet weather. This new coat of rock will correct this fault.

However, I did a little research work and found that if Mother Nature is kind to us and doesn't slap us down with a freeze or flood our fields, we are going to have plenty of good citrus fruit and fresh vegetables to market this season. Specializing in ramie and nylon

"Ramie is a second cousin to linen and might be manufactured even now cheaper than linen," he said. "And certainly, as we learned the proper management for its manufacture, it could be done very much cheaper. Ramie is far supera-ior to cotton and stronger and better wearing than linen. It has a definite place in, our textile in-dustry," said Mr. Simpson.

History proves that no new tex-tile has ever replaced an exisiting one. When synthetic yarns were first produced, it was predicted that it would hurt the sale of cotton yarns. Yet, today, we are grow-ing and using more cotton than

The pualities of ramie would make it very desirable, for fire hose, sail cloth, awnings, Army and Navy uniforms, sheetings, shoe thread, travelling bags for Army and Navy equipment, upholster automobile tire fabrics, automob upholstery, tropical suitings or for any fabric that gets heavy wear.

"Egyptian nummies have been found wrapped in ramie clofn known to be 4,000 years old and the cloth is still good," said Mr.

Mr. Simpson can personally at-test to the fact that ramie is dur-

Twenty-five years ago he had some ramic cloth, manufactured in Germany, made into a shirt. You can hardly tell it's been worn.

About a year ago, Mr. Simpson took some Florida ramic to a Massachutts mill to be spun into material. From this bolt, suits were made and are now helps worn by. made and are now being worn by Mr. Simpson, Dr. Charles Short of Clermont, Captain Marshall Collins of Mount Dora and Nathan Mayo, Florida Commissioner of Agricul-ture. About seven months of use has made them enthusiastic about the possibility of ramie as a Flor-ida industry.

Ramie grows better here than any other place in the world, says Mr. Simpson. And it produces fast-er in the muck lands. Our basic need, he says, is a pilot plant for spinning and weaving of ramie into yarn.

Mr. Simpson has worked closely with his friend, Dr. Charles R. Short of Cfermont, in the manufacture of ramie. Dr. Short has spent many years and considerable money in treless research to further develop Florida resources in the handling of ramie fibre, making a way for the manufacturing industry to be developed here. Both Dr. Short and Mr. Simpson are vitally interested in hepling the vitally interested in helping the economy of Florida and in provid-ing sufficient employment for our young people. They feel that some

"European countries are much farther advanced in the manufacture of ramie than we are," according to Mr. Simpson. He believes that its possibilities are unlimited and that it is Florida's great industrial opportunity.

The textile business has always been the business of James Simp-son. He began working in a textile mill while still a small boy and he mill while still a small boy and he worked his way up from the very bottom: Mr. Simpson knows every angle of this business. "I've spun every fibre that's grown," he said. He owned a mill in Pawtucket, R. I. at one time and was later connected with the Ames Worstet Mills in Massachusetts and the Bigelow Carpet Company.

In his new shop in Eustis, James Simpson makes nylon and ramie fishing lines from three machines going full speed every hour of the working day. Two of these ma-chines are 16 carrier and one is a 12 carrier machine. Two make nylon lines and one makes ramie line

These 12 or 16 carriers or spools of black thread turn with amazing speed in an old fashioned dance, May Pole fashion, combin-ing with white thread from the bottom of the machine to twist into one line to "pull in those big ones.

After coming off the "assembly line," the fishing lines are then line," the fishing lines are then wound on attractive plastic spools by a machine which Mr. Simpson

When we asked him why his people came here, he said, "They were seeking a better place to live." And they must have liked what they saw because they never did even make a trip back to England after coming to the States. States

Mr. Simpson is married and has two sons and one daughter and three grandchildren.

Inactivity soon lost its glamour for this active man who started making fishing lines as a hobby making rishing lines as a hobby and as the answer of something to keep his mind occupied after 60 years of work. At first, he sold his products to friends and their friends but the demand became so great that he now has opened with-in the past month his own manu-facturing shop to supply the de-mand which he created.

He believes his nylon fishing lines are superior to many on the market because of the high tenacity and better grade of the Du-pont nylon thread which he uses. Mr. Simpson buys his ramie thread from a New York firm which, in-cidentally, buys the ramie from Florida!

It was here that Mr. Simpson took another opportunity to em-phasize that Floridians should uti-lize materials found in Florida referring to ramie and its poten-

Belle Glade Rams Highly Favored To Whip Blue Devils

On Wednesday night the Pahoee Blue Devils and the Belle Glade Golden Rams will wind up their 1949 football season when they meet on Memorial Field in Belle Glade for the traditional battle between the two Glades teams

In order for this game to be the cotball classic that usually results when these two teams pit their cunning and strength against each other the Blue Devils will have to unreel more offensive power and unreel more offensive power and fighting spirit than they have displayed to date. The Pahokee eleven from the start lost six successive games to Clewiston, Ponce de Leon Lake Worth, Seacrest, South Broward and Fort Pierce. Then they perked up to down a weak Largo team 28 to 0 two weeks ago and managed to hold the Stuart Tigers to a scoreless tie last Fri-day night at Stuart where the field was so wet that both teams had
